

Background

Thank you for taking the opportunity to participate in this research into personal tutoring. This study is seeking to collect data to evaluate the role and experience of personal tutoring in your department.

Aims

The overall aim of the project is to develop an approach to improving the quality of personal tutoring for all students in the faculty, with a particular view to narrowing attainment gaps for students from Black and Minority Ethnic (BME) groups and from lower socio-economic backgrounds.

This survey aims to collect data on the current provision of personal tutoring to inform the development of the larger project which will launch in the 2017/18 academic year.

Confidentiality and right to withdraw

All data collected will be confidential and will be analysed by researchers within the research group, published on the internet and in papers and reports. Anonymised data will also be used for secondary analysis by researchers related to the project.

You have the right to withdraw at any stage by simply closing this browser. Following completion of the survey, you have the right to withdraw your data up to the point that analysis commences, which will be 4 weeks after completing the survey. Anonymised data will be held until the closing date of the project (December 2024).

If you would like to remove your data from the planned analyses, please email the research contact provided below.

Shopping vouchers

To acknowledge your time taken to complete this survey, you will have the opportunity to enter a prize draw to win 1 of 3 £50 Amazon vouchers.

Research partners

This research is taking place across three institutions, including the University of Sheffield, King's College London, and the University of Portsmouth.

Funding

This survey is part of a pilot project funded by the Higher Education Funding Council (HEFCE).

Contact

For further information please contact Samuel Dent on:

Email: S.Dent@Sheffield.ac.uk

Tel: 0114 222 1715

Independent contact

If you would like to speak about any concerns about the research or conduct please contact Amerjit Basi on:

Email: a.basi@sheffield.ac.uk

Tel: 0114 222 1216

Do you consent to take part in this survey? (select "yes" to start the survey)

Yes

No